Campbell Johnston has a distinguished career as a legal practitioner having been a partner in a national corporate law firm for over 30 years. He has practiced in all areas of banking and finance law, with extensive experience in project and corporate financing and domestic and international capital markets transactions. He has represented both sponsors and financiers in a wide variety of industrial resource and infrastructure development projects, sales and acquisitions.

Campbell's experience and achievements include:

- Executive Counsel to the AWB Limited, advising on a wide range of issues arising from the Cole Inquiry into the United Nations Oil-for-Food Program and later on other matters AWB Limited needed to address in response to and following the inquiry;
- member of an advisory group and consultant to Powercor Network Services Pty Ltd a subsidiary of the Hong Kong based Chung Kong Infrastructure which owns the Electricity Trust of South Australia, Powercor Limited and Citi Power Limited;
- named in Euromoney Expert Services (2004) as a world's leading expert in banking law and a leading individual projects lawyer in each of Global Counsel 3000 (2003/4), Chambers Global (2006) and IFLR 1000 (2006);
- representing both joint venture participants and financiers in a wide variety of industrial and resource development projects including pulp and paper, aluminum, coal, oil and gas and electricity generation, transmission and distribution.

Campbell is also an accomplished rower. He won gold along with current Brian Ward & Partners partner Geoff Rees in the 1974 World Rowing Championships.

Campbell has been a member of the Council of Scotch College since 1995 and a member of the Council of the Royal Melbourne Golf Club since 2007. He is also a director of the Melbourne Anglican Foundation Ltd and the Goldman Sachs J.B. Were Foundation Limited. He was previously a director of the Bell Shakespeare Company.
